CHAPTER 1

OVERVIEW

1. What is the IELTS speaking test?

The IELTS speaking test is the final part of the exam. The test lasts between 11 and 14 minutes. You will be interviewed by an examiner who will record your conversation. Timing is strictly controlled by the examiner, so do not be surprised if he or she interrupts you during an answer.

There are 3 parts to the Speaking Test:

Good morning! My name is Tony Smith; and I am your examiner for today's speaking test.

- Can you tell me your full name?
- What should I call you?
- Where are you from?
- Can I see your identification, please?

Part 0: Greeting the examiner

Great, now we shall begin.

In the first part of the test, I will ask you some questions about yourself. Let's begin:

Let's talk about where you live:

- Do you live in a house or an apartment?
- What do you like best about your house/apartment?
- What would you like to change about your house/apartment?
- In the future, would you prefer to buy a house or an apartment?

I want to move on and talk about sports:

- Do you play any sports?
- What kinds of sport are popular in your country?
- Do you think that it is important for people to play sports?

Let's talk about mathematics:

- At what age do people in your country usually have mathematics lessons at school?
- Do you think that it is reasonable to study mathematics at young age?
- What are the roles of mathematics in real life?
- Do you think that teachers should let their students use electronic devices like calculators to solve mathematic problems?

Part 1: Short interview:
around 10-12 questions in 4 to 5 minutes.

Thank you! That is the end of the first part; and now I'd like to move on to the second part. In this part, I will give you a topic. And I want you to talk about that topic for 1 to 2 minutes. Before you talk, you have 1 minute to think about what you are going to say; and you can make some notes if you wish. Do you understand? Great! Here's your paper and pencil. I want you to describe a friend that is very important to you.

Describe an important friend

You should say:

- Who this friend is
- How the two of you met
- What you have done together

And explain why this friend is important to you

- Possibly, the examiner may ask you 2 follow-up questions. But this doesn't always happen.

Part 2: Short presentation:
talk for 2 minutes with 1 minute to prepare.

Thank you! That's the end of the second part. I'd like to move on to our last part. We have been talking about an important friends, now I want to ask you some more general and abstract questions related to this.

- What can friends do to help each other?
- Do you have friends who are older or younger than you are?
- Do you think that it is easy to make friends with people who are older?

Let's talk about friendship:

- In your opinion, how does our friendship change when we grow up?
- What is your opinion about friends on social media, such as Facebook?
- What are the dangers when we make friends with people on social media?

Part 3: Discussion: around 5-6 questions in 4 to 5 minutes.

Thank you! That's the end of the speaking test!

=> Question to ponder: Do the 3 parts of the speaking test carry equal weighting when your score is calculated, or is one part more important?

The answer is that the 3 parts are NOT scored separately, the examiner assesses your performance as a whole. He/she will write the four sub-scores on a piece of paper during the first part, and these four scores will be reduced or boosted as the test progresses.

2. How will your performance be assessed?

There are 4 different assessment criteria:

1. Fluency & Coherence
2. Lexical resource
3. Grammatical range & accuracy
4. Pronunciation

A more detailed description might be downloaded here:

http://takeielts.britishcouncil.org/sites/default/files/IELTS_Speaking_band_descriptors.pdf

These four criteria share equal proportions in your final band score.

For example: If your scores are as follows:

Fluency & Coherence	Lexical resource	Grammatical range & accuracy	Pronunciation
4	4	5	5

Then your overall band score would be: $(4 + 4 + 5 + 5)/4 = 4.5$

Both whole number and half band scores are given in the speaking test. If the overall score is neither a whole number nor a half band score, it will be reduced to the next whole number or 0.5 number.

For example: If the overall band score is 4.25 or 6.75, it will be reduced to 4.0 or 6.5.

3. What are they looking for?

It's important to know what the examiner really expects from a high scorer. This is something that most students either miss out or misunderstand during their first days of preparation, which leads to certain failure in the real exam.

First, you need to know what the IELTS speaking test really is. Technically it's a normal conversation between you and the examiner. A lot of test takers unfortunately think it is a formal talk and speak in a very complicated and "academic style". The key factor to getting a high score is to speak naturally without long pauses and to use a variety of verb tenses correctly and flexibly.

During the first part of the test, the examiner expects you to give an immediate answer after hearing his/her question. This part is to test your daily vocabulary and a warm-up stage before going to part 2 and 3, so there is no need to show off good vocabulary here. You need to focus on fluency and pronunciation by giving a random and simple answer. And remember, keep your answer no longer than 3 sentences.

In the second part, the examiner expects you to give an organized response which lasts for, usually, at least 1 minute and 30 seconds to 2 minutes. You should be able to show off a little bit of your vocabulary and grammar but I advise you to focus on the coherence of your talk and always tell a story. The examiner always wants to hear stories.

The last part of the speaking section, which is a two-way discussion where the examiner can freely improvise his questions to follow up your answers, is to test your upper limit. The level of difficulty increases and the examiner will try to ask you more abstract and challenging questions. This is the part for you to show off your best vocabulary and grammar. Try to give personal examples where possible.

⇒ Question to ponder: Is accent important to achieve a high score?

The answer is no! Accent has nothing to do with pronunciation; and therefore, it will not affect the examiner's assessment on your performance. You can speak in either American, British or Vietnamese accent and still get a high score, provided that few mistakes regarding pronunciation are made.

- Points to focus on:

If you are aiming at band 6.0-6.5 or sometimes even higher, pay the least attention to grammar and vocabulary. Try to speak fluently, naturally and clearly with few pronunciation mistakes being made. Remember, “Simplicity is the ultimate sophistication”.

CHAPTER 2

TECHNIQUES

1. Part 0: Greeting the examiner

This is the part where you can make a friendly impression on the examiner because he/she will ask you several warm-up questions to get to know you. But there are certain things that need to be paid attention to in order to avoid creating an awkward atmosphere.

Usually the conversation would go like this:

- Examiner: Good morning/afternoon, my name is Tony Smith; and I am your examiner for today's speaking test.

Examinee: Good morning/afternoon Tony. Or Good morning/afternoon Mr. Smith.

- ⇒ Do not say: Good morning/afternoon Mr. Tony for Mr. only preceded a person's family name, not first name.

- Examiner: Can you tell me your full name? What should I call you?

Examinee: My full name is Nguyen Anh Toan, but you can call me Toan for short.

- ⇒ There's no need to expand your response any further.

- Examiner: Where are you from?

Examinee: I am from Hanoi.

- ⇒ You can add some further information to this response as follows: "I was born and raised in Hanoi, but I have moved to HCMC and been living and working in District 3 for over 4 months." But do not try to expand any further. You will not lose marks if you give a short answer in this part of the test.

- Examiner: Can I see your ID please?

- Examinee: Sure/Certainly. Or Here you are

- ⇒ Do not say: Of course or here/there you go as these phrases are rather inappropriate between you and the examiner.

2. Part 1: Short interview

1. Overview

In the first part of the IELTS speaking section, the examiner will ask you approximately 10-12 questions (usually 3 different topics), all of which are about your life (work, study, hometown, pets, sports etc.). This part lasts for about 4-5 minutes. You can check out an example of questions in speaking part 1 in the previous section.

Note:

- Not all part 1 questions are familiar and easy. Sometimes, they can be about social issues (advertising, child education ...) which often appear in part 3 and require more advanced language skills to answer.
- You will not get a high score if you only do well in this part. It only tests your everyday vocabulary and basic grammar.
- You have to answer 10-12 questions within 4-5 minutes, which leaves you 15-20 seconds to answer each question. Long answers will lead to the examiner interrupting you.
- Feel free to speak personally. Part 1 questions are about you so it's best to talk about yourself.
- If you do not understand the question, politely ask the examiner to repeat it (he/she is NOT allowed to help you or give further explanation regarding the meaning of the questions) by saying: "I'm sorry I didn't quite catch your question. Could you repeat it for me please?"

2. How to answer part 1 questions:

- Try to give short and simple answers
- Try to answer the questions by giving at least a full sentence (3 sentences max)
- Try to add as much information as possible within 15-20 seconds.
- Don't think too much about the content of your answers. Just give an immediate answer. You will probably lose some marks if you make a long pause after hearing the question.

Example:

- Do you live in a house or an apartment? Track 1.1

⇒ I live in a very large house with my family on the outskirts of Hanoi.

- What do you like best about your house/apartment? Track 1.2

⇒ Probably my small garden on the fifth floor where my parents grow chilies and lettuce. It's also my favorite spot for writing my blog while sipping a cup of coffee in the morning.

- What would you like to change about your house/apartment? Track 1.3

⇒ I'd love it if my house had more bathrooms. It's a 5 story-house but there's only one shared bathroom for 6 members, so sometimes it's very inconvenient to wait for your turn.

- In the future, would you prefer to buy a house or an apartment? Track 1.4

⇒ A house for sure. I love having a garden to enjoy my writing along with the tranquility of the atmosphere. I don't think buying an apartment would be a great choice because it's not possible for me to have a garden in an apartment.

- Do you play any sports? Track 1.5

⇒ I used to play soccer when I was younger, maybe 9-10 years back. However, I am totally swamped with my teaching job and have almost no time to go out.

- What kinds of sport are popular in your country? Track 1.6

⇒ I would say it's soccer which is considered the King of sport. And whenever our national soccer team has a match with another team from abroad in our national stadium My Dinh, the tickets are completely sold out. The crowd of fans really stirs up the atmosphere and goes nuts after a victory of their home team.

- Do you think that it is important for people to play sports? Track 1.7
 - ⇒ Yes absolutely. Playing sports is a great way to keep fit and stay healthy. Especially the elderly should participate in Tai Chi clubs to maintain good health condition.

- At what age do people in your country usually have mathematics lessons at school?
Track 1.8
 - ⇒ Usually from an early stage, probably at 6 years of age, Vietnamese children are taught mathematics at primary school but lessons included in this level of education are only about some basic calculations. The difficulty of such lessons increases as children attend higher classes.

- Do you think that it is reasonable to study mathematics at young age? Track 1.9
 - ⇒ No, not at all. Children should be given time to play with their parents and friends. Through playing, they learn, and that's the very natural and also the most suitable way to foster their development. I don't think making children sit at their desk to do homework is a good practice.

- What are the roles of mathematics in real life? Track 1.10
 - ⇒ There are a number of values that mathematics brings to us, certainly. It helps develop our logical thinking and also our analytical ability, which contributes to our development of problem solving skills. Besides, modern technologies, such as rockets or space crafts, are invented based on mathematics.

- Do you think that teachers should let their students use electronic devices like calculators to solve mathematic problems? Track 1.11

⇒ Although calculators and other devices offer great help to students, I don't think it's a good idea to let students use them very often. Mathematics is about enhancing individual skills, not about using tools to solve a given problem.

3. Part 2: Short presentation

1. Overview

After you have finished the first part, you will be given a topic with 4 suggestions presented. You will be asked to speak about that topic for 1-2 minutes after 1 minute of preparation. You can make notes during this 1-minute period. Topics in the second part mainly focus on 5 major areas:

- Describe a person
- Describe an object
- Describe an experience
- Describe a place
- Describe a favorite

Note:

- The most important thing to do in the second part is to KEEP TALKING for 1 to 2 minutes.
- Don't care much about grammar, focus on the content of the presentation delivered in this part and also the fluency of your answer.
- Expand your answer by focusing on the 4 suggestions that are provided.
- You don't need to maintain eye contact with the examiner in this part of the test.
- Keep in mind that the examiner is NOT allowed to help you by any means in this part.

2. How to give an impressive presentation

- Make most use of your 1-minute period of preparation

Only write down a few key words, enough to help you remember the details of your presentation.

For example:

Describe an important friend

You should say:

- Who this friend is
- How the two of you met
- What you have done together

And explain why this friend is important to you

Your note:

High school friend Roger

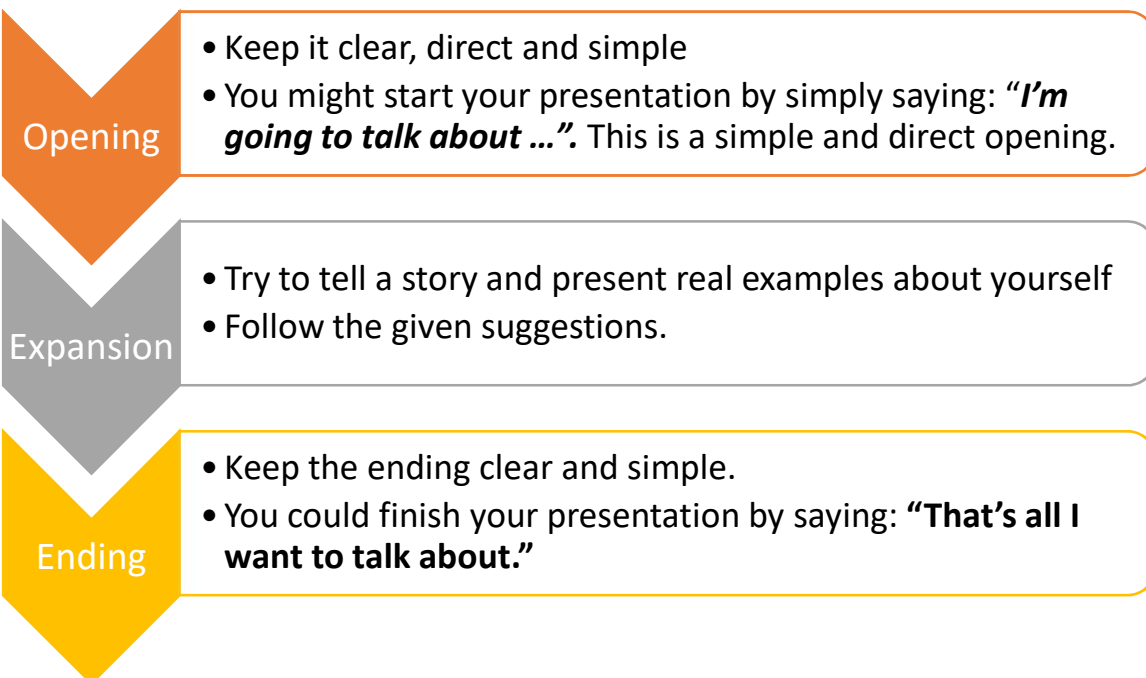

Desk mate

Soccer club

Confide + school bullies

Long notes would take away too much time and you might not be able to be well-prepared in terms of the content of the presentation.

- Have an easy and logical structure

3. Example:

Describe an important friend

You should say:

- Who this friend is
- How the two of you met
- What you have done together

And explain why this friend is important to you

Sample Track 02

I'm going to talk about my best friend Roger, whom I went to high school with.

After 9th grade, I was sent to a high school which was located in the center of Hanoi, 15 miles away from my neighborhood because my parents believed it'd be better for me. I was set up to sit next to Roger in the final row of my class. At first, I thought Roger was a total snob because he bragged too much about him and his soccer team. But later I realized that he's a good sport after a few days and I spent more time talking to him. We really hit it off quickly. He even invited me to join his soccer team as he knew I was looking for an opportunity to integrate into a new environment. We used to hang out with some other classmates at the backyard to play after class. Then we became closer and closer together, he even helped me cram for math exams when I knew that he was kind of a math freak. I was amazed that he could solve any sorts of exercise in a perfectly timed manner. This is probably not something to be proud of but he used to help me cheat during my final tests, which really helped me survive through my high school years.

There are two main reasons why Roger is a very important person to me. First, his kindness helped me a lot when I first moved to study there. Without him, a sense of inferiority within me would have thrived because unlike other kids, I was from the outskirts. He even protected me from other students' ridicule and made me feel more confident. Second, of all people he understood me the most because he gave me a feeling that I could trust him. Whenever I had any trouble, I would always tell him first and he always stood by my side to offer some help.

That's all I want to share about my friend Roger.

A very simple and direct opening

Next, I'll expand my response by telling a story which is based on the first 3 suggestions.

Then I'll give more detail by explaining the last suggestion with 2 ideas, using a very simple structure like this sample.

A very simple and direct ending

Language focus:

Words/phrases	Definition	Example of usage
To be a snob (n) /snɒb/	A person who thinks he/she is better than others	Her boyfriends turned out to be a snob after going out with her for a few weeks.
To brag about something (v) /brag/	To talk too proudly about something you own or something you have done.	He always bragged about how successful he was since the first day he ran his business in trafficking.
To be a good sport (idm)	A generous and cheerful person	She realized that her ex-boyfriend was actually a very good sport.
To hit it off (idm)	To have a good friendly relationship with someone	She remembered that her ex and she hit it off very quickly after the first date.
To be a math freak (idm)	To be extremely good at math	But she dumped him because he was a math freak and she didn't like it.
A sense of inferiority (np) /ɪn ˌfɪərɪ ˈɔːrɪti/	A feeling that other people are much better than you are	After she broke up with him, he adopted a sense of inferiority and committed suicide in his room.
Ridicule (n) /ˈrɪdɪkjʊ:l/	Unkind comments to make fun of someone	Now, she is an object of ridicule among her friends.
To stand by one's side (idm)	To support someone in difficult situations	She only hopes to find someone who will always stand by her side no matter what might happen.

4. Part 3: Discussion

1. Overview

In this part of the test, the examiner will ask you a series of questions which are related to the topic in the second part. However, those questions are about more abstract ideas.

Note:

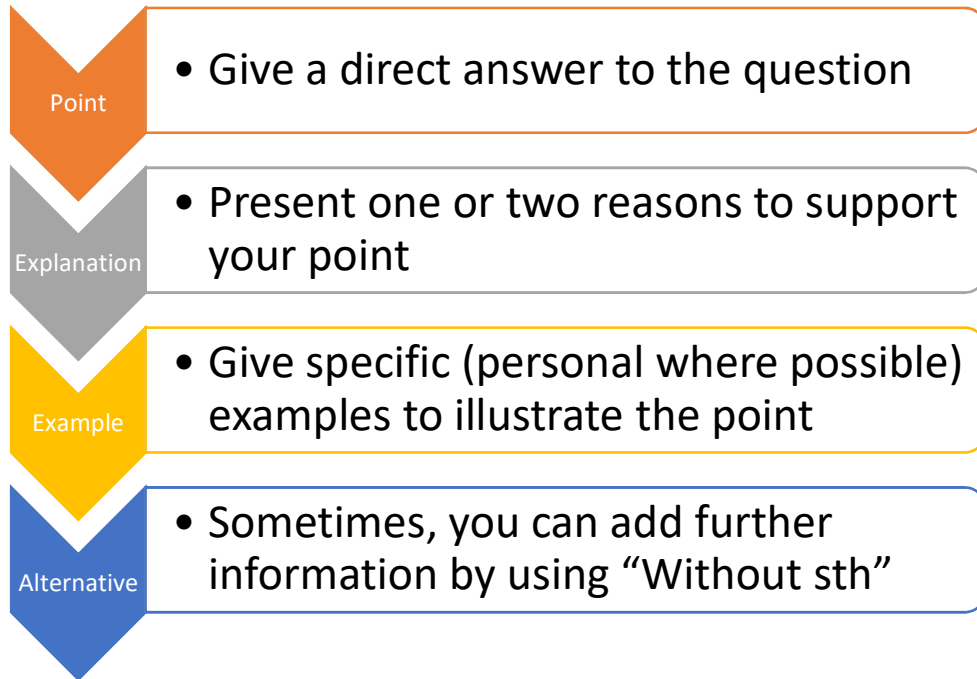

- Try to give long answers. (30-40 seconds for each question)
- You can ask the examiner to give you some time to think before giving an answer. Sometimes, questions in part 3 can be very challenging in the sense that you cannot give an immediate answer. However, with little time to think, you can give a decent answer. The examiner understands that so it's OK to ask for some preparation by politely making comments on the questions as follows: “That’s quite difficult. Let me think about that.”
- In case you don't know the answer, you can give a “I don't know” answer. In the speaking test, you will not lose marks if you start your answer with “I have no idea” but make sure that you give a proper explanation why you don't know the answer, or you can present your guess if possible. As long as your explanations or guesses makes sense, the examiner will not subtract your scores.

For example: How has technology affected people's lives in big cities?

Actually I have no idea because I have been living in the countryside my entire life. My village is completely untouched by modern technologies and I hardly go to any urban areas so I'm in no place to tell that technology has negatively or positively changed people's lives. But I guess machinery aids people, especially blue-collar workers, a lot in their work because my brother moved to Hanoi to work in a factory a few years ago. He never stops talking about how convenient and efficient it is to use machines in production whenever he comes home.

2. How to answer part 3 questions

- Remember, direct answers are the best.
- Expand your answers by giving real examples and facts (personal examples are preferable)
- Occasionally, follow the structure below:

3. Example

- What can friends do to help each other? Track 3.1

⇒ Friends can do a lot to help us in difficult times actually because being a friend means that we always look out for one another, always stand side by side through thick and thin. My high school friend Roger gave me a sense of trust and I was not afraid of confiding in him whenever something troubled my mind. Without Roger, my high school years would have been a complete nightmare because of other kids' bullying and mockery.

Point + explanation

Personal example

Alternative

- Do you have friends who are older or younger than you are? Track 3.2

⇒ Actually no, I don't get on really well with people who are older or younger than me. I have no idea why but perhaps it's my personality. One time, if I remember correctly, during a voluntary project I participated in when I was a sophomore at Foreign Trade University in Hanoi, I had to collaborate with some seniors. I made quite a mess because I had a huge conflict with those guys. However, I do have many friends my age. It's easy and comfortable to make friends with people at the same age, to be honest.

- Do you think that it is easy to make friends with people who are older? Track 3.3

⇒ I don't think there is any absolute answer to this question because each person has different personalities. Many prefer and find it somehow easy to get to know older people, others just don't. As for me, all of my friends are at my age and I think it's best for me because I have worked with people who are older and they are always pretentious. But it might not be the case for other people.

- In your opinion, how does our friendship change when we grow up? Track 3.4

⇒ It's hard to say for sure because it also depends on each person. But I suppose the nature of friendship would change as we grow older. When we are kids, we live in the present and play with other kids without thinking much about where our friendship would go. During adulthood, we become more calculating and some of us tend to measure our friendships based on future advantages. Of course, there are still pure relationships between friends and this bond never changes as time passes.

- What is your opinion about friends on social media, such as Facebook? Track 3.5

⇒ Social media like Facebook is an ideal platform to meet our demand for communication and understanding. We can make a lot of friends, but most of them are strangers. There's no guarantee that they are not trying some stratagems. Profiles users display on their private wall can be deceiving and we don't know what is true and what is not. In this day and age, technology is a double-edged sword, it fosters relationships and facilitates communication but it also harms us in very unusual and unpredictable ways as people can fake their profiles and upload fraudulent posts. So I think we can't trust online friends unless we know them personally.

- What are the dangers when we make friends with people on social media? Track 3.6

⇒ There have been tons of cases reported on TV and newspapers about cyber-crimes committed through this social online platform. I think it'd be best not to discuss anything personal, like finance, with anybody you only know through social media. Recently I have read a newspaper reporting a murder of a school girl who trusted her so-called friend that she has known on Facebook only for a couple of days. The guy murdered her in cold blood just to take her jewelry. It's really terrifying.

IT IS EXTREMELY IMPORTANT TO GIVE SPECIFIC EXAMPLES IN YOUR RESPONSE!

In this day and age (idm)	In this modern world	People don't need heroes in this day and age, at least not anymore.
To be a double-edged sword (idm)	Something that has both advantages and disadvantages	The government even claimed that using us in a time of war is a doubled-edged sword, especially after the Ultron incident.

Cyber-crimes (n)	Crime that is committed using the Internet	Sorry I don't know how to make up a sentence that both has "cyber-crimes" and matches my Avenger story ☹️
In cold blood (idm)	Deliberately cruel without any pity	Okay back to the Avenger story. The government want to disband the team and end the Avenger Initiative. Captain America didn't consent to this order and decided to work alone. So the government sent his lover Iron Man to murder American first super hero in cold blood.

CHAPTER 3

TRAINING

SESSION 1: PEOPLE

Warm-up questions:

- Who is your favorite teacher?

⇒ Track 4.1: I'd say it's my IELTS teacher Anh Toan. He taught students at various levels from basic to advanced at ZIM Academy, which is based in Hanoi and HCMC. I am a big fan of his self-written books about English skills so I decided to take part in his offline class to know more about IELTS.

- What do you like most about his /her lessons?

.....

.....

⇒ Track 4.2: Basically his lessons are not just about IELTS, in fact it'd be boring if they are. He really knows the way to show us how everything around us is connected to language learning and to make his lessons different. I also like his energy whenever he stands in front of the whole class.

- What aspect does he/she has the greatest influence on?

.....

⇒ Track 4.3: There are several, actually. Certainly he helped me improve my language skills, especially writing skills which I fear the most. He also reignited my passion for learning English by his resonant stories during each and every lesson.

Topic for practice

Topic 1 Describe a person you have just met and want to know more about You should say: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Who this person is • When and where you met • What you did or talked about And explain why you want to know more about this person	Topic 2 Describe a person who has a great influence on you You should say: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Who this person is • How she knew this person • What influence this person has on you And how you think of the influence

There are many part 2 topics about describing a person, but you only need to find the similarities among those topics so as to make your preparation easier. For example, two different topics have been presented above but you only need to talk about one person.

Topic 1 Describe a person you have just met and want to know more about You should say: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Who this person is ⇒ My IELTS teacher • When and where you met ⇒ A few weeks ago at ZIM Academy • What you did or talked about ⇒ IELTS lessons and daily stuff And explain why you want to know more about this person	Topic 2 Describe a person who has a great influence on you You should say: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Who this person is ⇒ My IELTS teacher • How you knew this person ⇒ A few weeks ago I saw an ad about an IELTS class at ZIM Academy • What influence this person has on you

⇒ You can do this with many other part 2 topics about describing a person.

Sample response Track 05

Topic 1	Topic 2
I am going to talk about my IELTS teacher Anh Toan, who is the head teacher at ZIM Academy and also the author of several IELTS writing books. A few weeks ago when I was looking for an IELTS class to study because I was planning to go abroad for my master degree in architecture in the UK. An IELTS certificate is a pre-requisite in my application form so I started to browse some Facebook pages for information. I saw an ad on IELTS SHARE and decided to enroll on an intensive class that Toan was in charge of. He taught me a lot of tips and tricks during the real test and instructed me and other students to effectively and efficiently prepare for the test. He also shared his story as an entrepreneur and all kinds of daily stuff to make his lessons more interesting. After each class I usually lingered around a bit to have a little chit chat with him, sometimes about English, sometimes about all sorts of stuff like the US president elect Donald Trump or how Mc Donald's Royal cheese burgers should be made. There are 2 main reasons why I really want to know more about him. First, his in-depth understanding of the test in general impressed me from the beginning and I think I can enhance my English skills greatly, especially my writing and speaking skills.	I am going to talk about my IELTS teacher Anh Toan, who is the head teacher at ZIM Academy and also the author of several IELTS writing books. A few weeks ago when I was looking for an IELTS class to study because I was planning to go abroad for my master degree in architecture. Possible part 3 questions for those part 2 topics:

- 1. What are the key qualities a good teacher should possess?

.....

.....

.....

⇒ Track 6.1: I think a good teacher should be knowledgeable, not just in the field he is teaching. It's vital for a teacher to have solid understanding about social issues because I believe students always expect more from their teachers rather than just their expertise. On top of that, a good teacher should be able to encourage creativity and help students think independently and logically. Like my mathematics instructor back in high school, he didn't force us to cram for exams but he rather motivated us to spend more time analyzing the problem instead. Without these qualities, I don't think students can actually learn anything from their teachers.

2. Do many young people in your country want to be teachers?

.....

.....

.....

⇒ Track 6.2: Yes more and more people choose teaching as their lifetime profession and many of them start teaching immediately after their graduation. Some of them don't even wait until graduation, instead they run their own language classes during their time at university. For example, my college friend Amanda began teaching evening English classes while she was still a sophomore. Later on she dropped out to focus on her career and fortunately, she now owns and manages a language center in Hanoi.

3. What do you think of the education system in your country?

.....

.....

.....

⇒ Track 6.3: Personally I think there are a lot to improve when it comes to Vietnamese education system, whose approach is pretty much one-way interaction. The exam system in Vietnam also needs fixing as it gives no place for creativity to thrive which I think should be the focal priority and the ultimate goal of any education system. But it's not the case in Vietnam apparently. Besides, increasing tuition fees keep students in remote areas at bay from accessing high quality education.

4. How can teachers encourage creativity in students?

.....

.....

.....

⇒ Track 6.4: There are a number of ways to do that. I think parents and teachers should not place too much pressure on children about school grades but rather give them more time to relax and discover things for themselves. The exam system should also be altered and should not be considered the only way to measure intelligence. Creative activities and subjects such as language and music classes should be added to school curriculum nationwide. Without creativity, I think education has failed its fundamental purpose.

SESSION 2: OBJECTS

Topic for practice

Describe an old thing that is important to your family

You should say:

- What it is
- What material it is made of
- Who bought it and when

And explain why it is important

Note:

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

Sample Track 07

Well an old thing in my home that I want to talk about is the photo of my family. It's hung on my living room's wall for ... god knows when. My parents are in that photo and my mom was wearing a wedding dress, standing beside was my dad in a dark suit and my grandparents were there too. I can't really know the color of their clothes because the photo is in black and white. But I'm pretty sure it was taken on my mom and dad's wedding. I guess that's the only picture they got back then so they really kept it in good condition and framed it with a beautifully polished wooden frame.

This photo's really important to my family, especially to me, because my grandparents passed away before I was born. It's like the only thing that connects me to my beloved grandpa and grandma, I didn't even have the chance to meet them in person. It's a pity really. And also I just love the antique beauty of the photo. Not many pictures nowadays have that kind of beauty even with high technology that allows you to adjust the picture in any way you want. And obviously it's some kind of invaluable token of love that my parents have for each other.

I think that's why such a small photo means that much to my family.

Possible part 3 questions:

1. What kinds of things do people usually keep for a long time?

.....

.....

.....

⇒ Track 8.1: I have a few things in mind, like family photos or graduation photos because they usually remind us of our holy bond with other family members or our past milestones. Also, some people like to keep antiques and display them in the living room to decorate their house. For example, my uncle loves collecting stamps that were produced in the past and keeps them in a glass cabinet in his living room. It gives people who visit his house a sense of admiration.

2. Why do some people like to have collections of antiques?

.....

.....

.....

⇒ Track 8.2: It can be their hobbies but it is only for the wealthy because antiques usually cost an arm and a leg. Also, it can be a way to show the owner's power and social status. I still remember visiting my friend's house and his father has built a garage just to collect and display antique cars from the 70s. Well it's quite understandable because his father work in the Ministry of Education and Training. Or sometimes people collect old things for decoration of their house because a living room adorned by pictures drawn from famous artist in the past would look more luxurious and match with other furnishings.

SESSION 3: EXPERIENCES

Topic for practice:

Describe a time you were very busy

You should say:

- When it was
- What you were busy with
- Why you were busy

And explain how you felt

Sample

I am going to talk about the time when my village, the Hidden Leaf, was attacked by Pain, who was the leader of an international criminal organization.

It was on March 20th, 1888 that the disaster fell above our heads from nowhere. Enemy attack came from every direction and our defense system was completely compromised.

They really took us by surprise. Our police force was soon overwhelmed by the enemy and everyone was driven deep into the shelter where our ancestors had built a long time ago. At that time I was the leader of the village's police force and I had to order my men to fall back and protect our villagers while I was in fierce combat with Pain. After 3 weeks of nonstop fighting, I, though heavily wounded, successfully pushed him out of the village’s territory. I was sent to our central hospital with my arm almost torn out and received special medical treatment for weeks. After my recovery, I had to put things back to normal. It was a complete anarchy, and my home was in ruin. Casualties were unthinkable. I had to maintain security and find anyone who had survived the massacre. I deployed each and every person who had strength left to take care of women and children. It took us over a year to get back on our feet.

It was the most brutal and spine-chilling incident I have ever experienced.

In case you don’t know, this story isn’t real. It is an imaginary piece of story and I don’t recommend you speak like this in the real test. If you are reading this line, I just want to say that: “Stand up and take a break😊”

This is the real practice

Warm-up questions:

- Do you enjoy travelling? Track 9.1

.....

.....

⇒ Yes absolutely! Although I am an introvert and I love spending some quality time alone in my room writing my blog or reading a book, the idea of getting to know more people and try exotic cuisines actually seems very tempting. So whenever I have much time off work, I’ll go on a motorbike trip for a day or so.

- What are the benefits of travelling?

.....

⇒ Track 9.2: There are a couple of good things. You get to try different specialties, experience new culture and see things you can't see if you only read some book. When you visit historical sites or museums, you can understand more about history and how the world has been evolving.

Topic for practice:

Describe an interesting trip

You should say:

- When you took the trip
- Where the place you visited was
- What you did during the trip

And explain why it was interesting

Notes:

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

Sample: Track 10

I love travelling, I mean, who doesn't, right? And if I have to talk about one of my most memorable trips, it will be the one to Xuan Hoa Military Camp on a cold day in the winter in my second year. I had lots of fond memories there with my college friends who I hardly meet any more. Yeah it's a pity but we all have jobs and other things to give our thoughts to. Well the trip was mesmerizing even though it was freezing riding around in motorcycle. We talked about all kinds of stuff and threw a party at our favorite place back when we were having classes there. Some of my friends even got hammered and during the whole return trip they just rambled on nonstop.

There're millions of reasons why this trip was so amazing. Well I have to mention our little incident with traffic police before we got to the camp. We're all careless and didn't pay attention to the traffic light and ... you know we crossed the red light. And of course, the whole group got pulled over and fined heavily. It was so unfortunate but it's actually something to remember, we still talk about that incident when we have the chance to meet up. It's just fun after all. Also, it was my last trip with my college friends before I decided to quit school. Every last thing is special in some aspects. It's like the checkpoint between my old and new chapter of life. I don't know about how others would feel about this, but to me, it just really means something.

Possible part 3 questions:

1. Did the generation of your parents enjoy travelling when they were your age?

.....

.....

.....

.....

.....

⇒ Track 11.1: Honestly I'm not sure. My parents never said anything about where they travelled and I didn't ask. Also, there are no pictures or records of them visiting any places. I guess they loved travelling but they didn't or maybe couldn't because my mother was expecting my brother when she was very young, right after their wedding. Probably they wanted to spend all their time taking care of my brother.

2. Do you enjoy travelling alone or with others?

.....

.....

.....

.....

Track 11.2: I don't like the idea of going somewhere far away alone because it is kind of scary and boring. When you go somewhere you are not familiar with, it's best to have some companions. A few years ago, I went on a trip to Thailand with some of my friends. On our second day in Bangkok, my wallet was stolen when we were touring around the street, all of my belongings were in there and I totally freaked out. If my friends hadn't helped me, I wouldn't have been able to come back to Vietnam.

3. What do you think of the tourism industry in your country?

.....

.....

.....

.....

⇒ Track 11.3: Oh it's terrible! And I'm not even exaggerating! Prices of souvenirs are prohibitive. Service qualities are substandard. And worse, garbage everywhere! Like the time when I visited Vung Tau for the first time, and also the last. It took me at least 100 VNĐ to buy a shell which usually costed around 5 at any random market in Hanoi. And the beach was completely packed and people threw litter whenever they wanted. And the cuisines were overrated in comparison with its quality. I think the tourism industry in my country would never have a future if it continues to ignore visitors' expectations.

Language focus:

SESSION 4: PLACES

Warm-up questions:

- Do you often go to coffee places?

.....

⇒ Track 12.1: I used to. Along Chua Lang Street, there were many places that serve coffee like Urban Station, Star Bucks or The Coffee House, whose Cappuccino was just stellar. But I am all occupied with work so once in a while only during weekends when I have some time to spare, I'll go to one of those houses to enjoy a cup of Cappuccino.

- What is your favorite coffee place like?

⇒ Track 12.2: It's a coffee shop called Bookworm's Coffee in Ho Chi Minh City. The design of the shop is quite antique with several shelves full of classic books. And each visitor gets to choose their own private space because tiny rooms, or "secret hideouts", are built all over the place. Also the coffee served in this coffee house is just above reproach.

Topic for practice

Describe a coffee place that you visited

You should say:

- Where it is
- Why you went there
- What you ate or drank

And explain why you liked or disliked it

Note:

.....

Sample Track 13

I am going to talk about a renowned coffee house in Hanoi, Totoro, also known as Cat’s Paradise.

It was located in a quiet neighborhood near a tiny lotus lake where local people usually fished in the early morning. The lake was surrounded by willows and the view was breath-taking in the summer. My first two years at university were filled with memories there because it only took me 5 minutes of walking to get there. I usually hung out with my friends at Totoro during weekends. The place served terrible coffee but the view was great and I could play with some cats. The owner of the house adored cats so much that she raised more than 10 cats of different kinds. They were very gentle and loved people petting their heads. I often ordered a random type of beverage then spent most of my time there with the cats because there were really cute.

I loved this place not because of the coffee, obviously, but I had so many memories with my friends there. We lost touch since graduation but I still keep many pictures of us. It's a symbol of our past friendship and it's a beautiful time of my life and I don't want to forget that. And it's hard to find another place that had such an amazing view and cats to play with in Hanoi.

Now I can't go to that coffee place because I am very busy but I would if I ever had time.

Language focus:

Words/phrases	Definition	Example of usage
Stellar (adj) /'stɛlə/	To be outstanding	The dancer's performance was so stellar that the audience gave him a huge ovation.
To be occupied with (adj)	To be very busy with something	He was certainly occupied with shows around the world.
To be above reproach (phrase) /rɪ'prəʊtʃ/	To be perfect	Some critics even sent forth their compliments and said not only his dancing skills but also his vocals were above reproach.
To be renowned (adj) /rɪ'naʊnd/	To be famous	He was a renowned talent and millions of people knew and idolized him.
To be breath-taking (adj) /'brɛθteɪkɪŋ/	Astonishing or awe-inspiring in quality, so as to take one's breath away	One of his greatest hits "Lac troi" went super viral because of the breath-taking scenes in the MV.

To lose touch with someone (v)	To no longer have any contact with someone	My friend lost touch with his daughter since she left home to join an organization whose members spent 24 hours a day spamming this singer's MV on YouTube.

SESSION 5: FAVORITES

Warm-up questions

- What do you like to do in your free time?

.....

⇒ Track 14.1: It depends on my mood. Sometimes I would go for a walk along the street near my apartment, sometimes a cup of ice tea in a quiet café. But most of the time, I would order a large-sized Domino Pizza with a thick layer of cheese and sit in my room playing DotA, a kind of video game.

- How long have you been doing that activity?

.....

⇒ Track 14.2: It has been a long time. I don't remember exactly when I first adopted this hobby, probably 7-8 years. Well there has been a time when I decided to quit and go find something good to do, like a part-time job or something. But I guess being a man with a job is not my thing after all.

- Are there many people who have the same hobby as yours?

.....

⇒ Track 14.3: Yes there are a lot. Young people in my country, especially high school and college students, are really into playing this game. I have many friends who are also game junkies who spend day in day out sticking their eyes to the computer screen.

Topic for practice

Describe an interest or hobby you particularly enjoy.

You should say

- What is it?
- How long have you been doing it?
- Who do you do it with?

And explain why this is important to you.

Note:

.....

Sample Track 15

Today I'm going to talk about my most loved game ever.

It's considered the King of E-sports ... well at least that's what I think anyway... it's Dota 2. It's kinda a complicated game and besides, I really don't recommend you play that game because if you don't possess a really good computer with extremely stable and fast Internet access, you're gonna get real angry and possibly punch through the screen. The game's all about teamwork, 5 players against 5 players until one team takes down the other's base. It's really brutal and sometimes drives you nuts. It's been 7-8 years since I started to adopt the hobby of playing DotA 2 while enjoying a large-sized Domino Pizza with a thick layer of cheese. I have many friends who are also game junkies who spend day in day out sticking their eyes to the computer screen and some of them are my teammates.

There are two reasons why I love playing Dota 2 whenever I have free time. First, it's one of the most challenging and mind-hacking games I've ever played. Just imagine a newbie has to try more than 100 characters just to get familiar, which would take nearly half a year if my counting was right. And I love to master such a game. Furthermore, the game is like what keeps my friends around, you know high school friends. We're all parted since graduation, everyone has their own path I guess. So we usually hang out at game arcades to play Dota and recall old memories.

That's why I love Dota 2 so much I think.

Possible part 3 questions:

1. How do people balance between hobbies and work in your country?

.....

.....

.....

.....

⇒ Track 16.1: I think there is no absolute answer to this question. Each person has their own way to keep their work and pastimes balanced. Some only go fishing during weekends to relax and focus on working on other days while others read books whenever they have time to spare. It's important to work hard and still have time to chill out or else one would be very stressed out. Like my uncle, whose job involves mostly calculations and numbers, he always spend his weekends away with his family. Without this recreational routine, he would quit his job a while ago.

2. Do people have different hobbies based on their age or gender?

.....

.....

.....

.....

⇒ Track 16.2: Yes they do. Old people tend to take part in activities that require less energy like reading while young people are attracted to challenging and sometimes adventurous ones like mountain climbing or skiing. And when it comes to gender, girls generally like something that needs patience and skillfulness like knitting. However, boys are into things like parkour. Sure there are exceptions but in most cases there are differences.

Language focus:

Words/phrases	Definition	Example of usage
To drive someone nuts (v)	To make someone crazy	My neighbor drives me nuts because they make love so loudly that I can't sleep at night.
A game junkie (np) /'dʒʌŋki/	Someone who is addicted to games	They have a son who is a game junkie. He usually spends at least 25 hours a day not moving his ass out of his chair.
A newbie (n)	Someone who is new to a particular activity	You know, I'm running out of idea how to tell a good story while each and every sentence in that story needs to contain a given word. Maybe I'm just a newbie and need to learn more.
To chill out (v)	To relax	Or maybe I'm just being stressed out. I need to chill out and call it a day.
